IN THE HUDDLE

By Steve Snapp

How does Woody Hayes evaluate the progress of his 1976 Ohio State football team?

"We're getting better with each game," answers Wayne Woodrow, whose squad has won its last two starts and now stands at 4-1-1 on the year and 3-0 in the Big Ten. "We played our best offensive game of the year last week at Wisconsin (a game won 30-20 by the Buckeyes) and our defense was awfully good until late in the game when the outcome was already decided.

"I don't think there is any question but that we are improving," he concluded.

Does that mean the Dean of Big Ten football coaches is satisfied with the Buckeyes' play thus far. Not on your life!

"I'm never satisfied," snapped Woody, the owner of 11 Big Ten titles in his 26 years at OSU. "You can't be if you want to keep improving. Even if we were unbeaten at this point, I wouldn't be satisfied."

One of the areas where Hayes feels the Buckeyes are improving is the passing game.

"We have thrown the ball much more efficiently the last three games than we did earlier in the year," he declares. "Rod Gerald (OSU quarterback) was bothered by a bursitis condition early in the season but he is healthy now and throwing the way we have always known that he can. And our young offensive line is providing better protection now."

As an afterthought Hayes added: "Maybe we haven't hit many passes so far, but the ones we have hit have been big ones."

Gerald, a 6-1, 173-pound sophomore who has had to break in against some of the finest football teams in the country, probably had his best game last week at Wisconsin, rushing for 81 yards and two touchdowns and completing three of six passes.

"Rod made a number of big plays for us against Wisconsin," noted Woody. "He is a fine football player and he is just going to get better."

Young Roderick and company lock horns with the Purdue Boilermakers this afternoon. The Riveters, who are making their first visit to Ohio Stadium since 1969, have a 3-3 record and are 2-1 in conference play.

The Purdue attack will present a number of problems for the OSU defense, which has been hobbled this year by a rash of injuries that includes everything from shin splits to ligament damage.

Of foremost concern will be Quarterback Mark Vitali, who has already put the ball in the air 102 times this year and has 47 completions and a whopping 827 yards to show for it.

The Boilermakers, who are averaging a very respectable 406 yards a game in total offense, can also run the ball. Tailback Scott Dierking has 634 yards and seven touchdowns to his credit and Fullback John Skibinski has rushed for 532 yards and four TDs.

On the other side of the coin, Coach Alex Agase's defensive platoon has ten starters returning from last year. The lone new face in the lineup is sophomore Cleveland Crosby, a 6-5, 230-pound defensive tackle, who just happens to lead the Boilermakers in tackles with 64 and tackles for losses with nine for a minus 37 yards.

Another sophomore, middle guard Ken Loushin, has 59 tackles to rank second in that department for the Boilermakers, who are meeting the Buckeyes for the 27th time since the series opener in 1919.

BACK OF THE WEEK

JEFF LOGAN — TAILBACK — Rushed for 113 yards against Wisconsin before being sidelined early in the third quarter with a bruised calf. His alert five yard run after he mishandled a pass from center on a field goal attempt resulted in a first down and led to the Buckeyes' second touchdown. The 21-year old junior has topped the 100-yard rushing mark in four of the Buckeyes' six games and leads the squad in rushing with 664 yards in an even 100 attempts. That's a 6.6 average per carry for Logan, who ranks 3rd in the Big Ten in rushing and stands 14th nationally.

LINEMAN OF THE WEEK

LOU PIETRINI — OFFENSIVE TACKLE — Won five Buckeye leaves for his performance against Wisconsin last week. Graded out to 76 percent against the Badgers, the second week in a row that he has had the top mark among OSU linemen. The fifth-year senior from Milford, Conn., who is in his first year as a starter, has been one of the Buckeyes' most consistent performers after missing all of the 1972 and '73 seasons because of injuries. He played in ten games last year as the Buckeyes third tackle, but only logged 42.5 minutes of playing time. He's already topped that figure this year and appears headed for a fine season.

OSU ICERS HOME

The Ohio State hockey team returns home next weekend to meet York University in a pair of games at the OSU Ice Rink. Starting time Friday and Saturday is 8:00 p.m. with tickets for students, faculty-staff and the general public available at the door for $2.00. Tickets can be purchased in advance Monday through Friday at the St. John Arena Ticket Office.

York, coached by former Ohio State coach Dave Chambers, posted a 24-15 record last year and was one of the top teams in Canada. With 17 lettermen returning this year, prospects are again bright.

The Buckeyes, who are at East Lansing this week for a two-game series with WCHA member Michigan State, opened their season last week by sweeping a pair of games from St. Clair College, 7-4 and 11-1.

Ray Griffin Buckeye Safety

When he hits you, you know you have been hit. When he misses you, you had better thank your lucky stars, because that doesn't happen very often. He's got speed to burn, power to spare and the ability to make the all-important "Big Play." He is Ray Griffin, and as far as the Ohio State football staff is concerned, he is the best safetyman in college football.

"He is simply a great football player," praises defensive coordinator George Hill of his star junior. "When you need a big play or a break, Ray usually comes through. I've seen a lot of films on a lot of teams, but I haven't seen any safety anywhere that compares to Raymond."

Iowa Coach Bob Commings expressed a similar feeling two weeks ago after Griffin had helped the Buckeyes to a 34-14 win over the Hawkeyes.

"He has to be the best safetyman in the country," declared the Hawkeye mentor. "In fact, he may be the best player in college football."

The nice thing about the latter is that Griffin, who began his career as a tailback but shifted to safety last year, is getting better. There's no telling how good he may be before he is through.

"He is an experienced defensive player now," beams OSU defensive backfield coach Dick Walker. "A year ago he was just learning the position and feeling his way along. Now he is sure of himself and you can see him getting better and better each time out."

Raymond had been a standout tailback at Columbus Eastmoor and had hoped to follow in the footsteps of his famous brother, Archie, at Ohio State. But he asked to be moved to defense at the end of his freshman year in order to get into the lineup. He could have gone back to offense last spring, but chose to stay with the defense.

"I like it at safety, like it a lot," says Ray, who already has 46 tackles and four touchdown saves this year. "I think I could have been a good running back, but we have a lot of talent there. I feel I am helping the team more at safety."

Paul Beery Boilermaker Safety

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.—He came to the Purdue campus in August 1974 hoping to defy the odds and play Big Ten football as a walkon. He surprised the experts by developing as a standout receiver over his first two years, earning a scholarship in the process.

Now, Paul Beery made the switch to defense and anchors the 1976 Boilermaker secondary at the strong safety position.

The 5-11, 190 pounder from Ft. Wayne, Ind., enjoyed probably his best day as a Boilermaker two weeks ago as he intercepted four passes in the Riveters' 18-16 victory over Wisconsin at Madison. The soft-spoken safetyman tied a Big Ten record and broke a Purdue standard for most interceptions in a game with that performance.

The switch of Beery to defense looks more like one of head coach Alex Agase's shrewder moves as the 1976 season progresses. Agase tinkered with the idea during spring drills this year and found it to his liking.

"The move of Beery didn't really hinge on whether Paul could play safety," Agase commented. "We knew he could from his blocking ability and aggressiveness on offense. The move hinged on finding a capable flanker to take his place. The Boilers have that in Reggie Arnold."

Agase had observed Beery's hard-hitting blocking ability during his first two years as a Boiler in which he snared 38 receptions for 606 yards and three touchdowns. He was Purdue's leading receiver in 1975.

"We wanted to get Beery involved in more of the action and take advantage of his talents as an athlete," Agase continued.

The Boilers already have done that. In fact, against Wisconsin, Beery still was Purdue's leading receiver. No offensive Boilermaker caught more than two aeriels!

HEAD COACH

WOODY HAYES

Woody Hayes and football have become synonymous during the past three decades. So, too, have Woody Hayes and winning.

Hayes, now in his 26th year at Ohio State, is the fourth winningest coach in college football history with 217 victories in 31 seasons. Only Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Bear Bryant have more triumphs than the 63-year old Hayes, who spent three years at Denison and two at Miami (O.) before taking over the Buckeyes in 1951.

Hayes, last year's Coach of the Year when his team won 11 of its 12 starts, has won 184, lost 53 and tied 9 at OSU for a winning percentage of .766. In Big Ten play he owns a 135-33-7 record and has captured 11 conference championships. No other conference school comes close to either figure during the past quarter of a century.

Currently Hayes, who has coached longer in the Big Ten than anyone except Stagg (41-years at Chicago) and Bob Zuppke (29 years at Illinois), is working on a string of four consecutive conference titles and an unprecedented four straight Rose Bowl appearances by the Buckeyes. A Big Ten crown in 1976 would make Ohio State the first team in conference history to win five consecutive championships.

Overall, Hayes, a native of New Philadelphia, O., has taken eight OSU teams to Rose Bowls and produced national championship squads in 1954, 1957 and 1968. His 1969 squad, which posted a 9-1 mark, is generally regarded as one of the finest college football teams ever assembled.

Since Woody has coached at Ohio State, the Buckeye school has led the nation in average home game attendance for 21 of the last 25 years and finished second the other four seasons. At the end of 1975, Ohio State owned a string of 44 consecutive home sellouts.

Hayes has spent his entire coaching career within the state of Ohio. After graduating from Denison in 1935, he accepted a position as assistant football coach at Mingo Junction where he remained until being named head coach at New Philadelphia in 1938. He won 19, lost 10 and tied one at New Philly before joining the Navy in 1941.

Following his discharge, Hayes returned to Denison to embark upon a collegiate coaching career. In the time since, he has become one of the most respected and most successful coaches the profession has ever known.

This year's activities included a campus area parade, lawn decorations at dormitories, sororities and fraternities, the king and queen contest, and a rally with the coaches and the team. Today will be climaxed with the pre-game crowning of the Homecoming King and Queen and the Buckeyes vs. Boilermakers football game.

The Homecoming Committee is pleased to sponsor these events and invites you to view the lawn decorations around campus.

We welcome back all Alumni and friends of The Ohio State University and hope you enjoy this Homecoming weekend.

Pfeifer Printing Company
"NEARLY A CENTURY OF SERVICE"

Pfeifer Printing means more than just quality printing. We offer complete art and layout services, typesetting, photographic skills, and, of course, fine printing in black and white and color.

What does this mean to our customers? It means one stop service, no running to an agency for art work, to a studio for pictures, to a typesetter for a couple lines of type. This saves time, which in turn saves money.

As Columbus' oldest commercial printing company, we know our business. Feel free to call one of our competent representatives for advice on your next printing job.

In 1919, University Hall presided over an expanse of lawn not yet criss-crossed by the sidewalks that cut patterns on the Oval today for the thousands of students that cross it every hour. Horseless carriages could pull up and park at the front door on a driveway that has today become a landscaped mall, closed to all but pedestrian traffic.

Seen through the west door of the Administration Building, the clock tower of University Hall takes on an eerie look during the razing. The street seen here is now a pedestrian walkway, closed to cars, and provides parking spaces for innumerable bicycles.

University Hall —

By Tahlman Krumm

Just 103 years ago, the tradition of University Hall began somewhat noisily for the first 24 students and six faculty members of the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College.

The college's first faculty member, T. C. Mendenhall, recalled the havoc of that registration morning, Sept. 17, 1873. The building, still under construction, stood, he mused, "in the midst of a muddy field, surrounded by the noise, dirt, and confusion of the unwilling departing workmen, and supported and sustained by all students."

The building was finally completed for the start of the winter term of 1874 at a cost of $150,085.02, about 30 per cent above the original bid.

For want of a better name, it was first called the "college building." Later it was renamed Main Building, and on March 1, 1892, University trustees officially designated it as University Hall.

For some time University Hall served as the only academic building on the 331-acre campus, sharing uncrowded space with 11 other buildings, most of them used in farming, amid wheat fields and woodlands north of the still small state capital.

But the University grew, and over the 100 years of University Hall's first life, its Victorian grandeur stood watch over the evolution of a rich University heritage and the growth of the campus to 3,300

The new University Hall, dedicated today, once again dominates the northwest Oval. Two other buildings, Dulles Hall to the north and Independence Hall, an auditorium to the west, also were part of the University Hall construction plan and provide additional classroom and office space.

The tower clock of University Hall returned just last summer after a four-year absence. The old clock, given to the University by the Class of 1903 and placed in the tower of the original University Hall, was salvaged when the original building was razed in 1971. Workers installed the iron number assembly, the only part of the original clock used in reconstructing the timepiece, by hand. The clock hands being positioned here are made of aluminum, replacing the original hands of oak. The white clock face and interior mechanism are also new. The original clockworks, as well as many other parts saved from the old building, are being considered for inclusion in a display planned for a memorabilia room in the reconstructed building.

acres and 51,000 students. Over those same years, University Hall at various times sheltered the offices of presidents, deans, departments and the first campus library. A child was born in its attic. A funeral was held in its chapel. And it listened with the students and faculty that brought it life to the notable personalities of five generations. In the process of becoming the focus of college life, University Hall also became the symbol of Ohio State itself.

But the wear and tear of University Hall's first century took their toll. Often struck by lightning, once rocked by an earthquake, and for decades giving evidence inside and out of serious deterioration, University Hall was ordered closed in June of 1969 as a safety precaution. Two years later, and 100 years after plans were fashioned for an academic building "at the north edge of the old orchard, south of two walnut trees," the tangible beginning of The Ohio State University was razed.

The decision to tear down University Hall had not been made easily, and, at that, not until after every effort had been made to find a practical alternative. From all across the state, from the general public, alumni, faculty and students alike had come appeals to save University Hall. Mindful of those appeals and the spirit behind them, University officials acted quickly to replicate University Hall, and out of one tradition grew another, inextricably linked with the University's past but reflecting the needs of its future.

It is that blend of past and future tradition that was honored at a special University Hall dedication this morning.

On the outside, new University Hall resembles in almost every detail its predecessor. In spirit, the resemblance is complete.

Inside, things are a bit different. Among the facilities of the new building are a special philosophy library, 12 classrooms and 12 seminar-conference rooms, 83 offices, space for 94 teaching associates, and faculty and staff lounges.

Like the original, however, new University Hall will house once more the Graduate School and the classics and philosophy departments, and it has added the Department of Black Studies.

Reinforcing its link between past and future, University Hall also is to contain a reconstructed 1873 classroom displaying some of the materials preserved from the original building.

Cost of the new structure was $3.75 million.

More important, however, University Hall, symbolic of the birth of one of the nation's great universities, presides majestically once more over the richness and diversity of life and thought that characterize the essence of higher education and the campus of The Ohio State University.

NATIONWIDE TIP FOR FALL!

The cooling system in your car is something that merits your attention. Simple preventive maintenance practices and the use of clean 50-50 solutions of ethylene glycol coolant solutions both winter and summer will keep your car running as it should, with fewer repairs and replacements being required, for many, many thousands of extra, trouble-free miles.

Check your car's cooling system this way:

Before the engine is started in the morning and while it is cold, remove the radiator cap and look at the coolant in the radiator. Note the level at which you find it.

If it is low, there is probably a leak in the cooling system somewhere.

If you still have last winter's antifreeze solution in the radiator, look at it carefully. Is it clean? If it is, you may leave it alone until fall's pre-winter servicing.

If, however, the coolant is dirty, contains rust and visible impurities, do drain the entire cooling system and flush it with a cooling system cleanser.

Drain and flush out thoroughly any cleanser used prior to refilling the system with the 50 - 50 mixture of coolant that you have pre-mixed before pouring into the radiator. (If you have any left over after topping off the radiator, keep it in storage in a sealed container for future make-up of coolant.)

Before filling the radiator with the coolant, check for faulty hoses by squeezing them and look for signs of checking, flaking, breaks, cracks, undue softness or brittleness.

Replace all faulty hoses.

Alex Gibbs—Defensive Line

COACH'S PROFILE

Alex Gibbs is starting his second year with the Buckeye staff. He coached the offensive guards and centers last year, but has been shifted to the interior defensive line this season.

Gibbs is a native of Thomasville, North Carolina. He is a graduate of Davidson in 1963 and has an M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina in 1964.

He began his coaching career as a high school assistant for two years. In 1966 he was named head coach at Mt. Airy High. In three years he won three conference titles and two state championships.

In 1969 and '70, Gibbs went to Duke as defensive backfield coach. He spent the next two years at Kentucky in a similar capacity. In 1973 and '74, Gibbs coached at West Virginia, again as defensive backfield coach.

In the short time he has been at Ohio State, Alex has become a favorite because of his enthusiasm, knowledge of the game and willingness to work.

Alex is married and he and his wife, Rose, have three children, daughter Sandra, and sons, David and Chuck.

THAT'S RIGHT . . . WE'RE THE FLAG-WAVERS!

. . . There are all kinds of flag-wavers in this world who wave flags for all sorts of reasons. The Ohio State University Alumni Association, the official organization of graduates and former students of The Ohio State University, has a membership of some 72,000 strong. We stand behind and support the Scarlet and Gray. You can, too, in many different ways. One way, visible to many, is to display a Buckeye Flag.

Each flag measures 3' x 5', a gray block "O" on each side sets on a scarlet field, grommet holes on one end permit easy attaching, and the durable nylon and tackle-twill material means it will be flying long after the game with that "other team."

For each flag, alumni association members should send $12.00. For non-members cost is $15.00. Shipping and tax are included in the above prices. Checks should be made payable to: Ohio State Alumni Association. Send your order to: Ohio State Alumni Association, Alumni House, 2400 Olentangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

Purdue Agase's First All-American Stop

West Lafayette — Now starting his fourth season as the Purdue University football coach, Alex Agase, 54, became acquainted with West Lafayette long before he entered the coaching profession.

A player and student here for a mere four months in the fall of 1945, Agase has been named to the all-time Purdue team, won one of his three all-America recognitions as a Boilermaker, and played on the last unbeaten, untied Purdue gridiron team in history.

In becoming Purdue's 27th football coach in 1973, Agase left Northwestern where he was head man for nine years. With the Wildcats, he was named Coach of the Year by the Football Writers of America in 1970 after guiding the Northwestern eleven to a second-place finish in the Big Ten — its highest standing in 22 seasons. The following year the Wildcats repeated their conference second-place finish.

Agase started his collegiate career at Illinois, where the sophomore won all-America honors as a guard in 1942. The next year Alex and several Illinois teammates came to Purdue as a part of the wartime V-12 program.

Marine Corps duty in the South Pacific interrupted his college education, 1944-45. On Okinawa he won a Bronze Star and Purple heart. Following his discharge, he returned to his original school, Illinois, for his senior year.

In the fall of 1946, he led the Illini to a Big Ten title—earning his third set of all-America credentials in the process, and then on to a 45-14 Rose Bowl rout of UCLA on January 1, 1947. In August 1947, he played with the College All-Stars in the annual charity game at Soldier's Field, and then reported to the Cleveland Browns in the professional ranks.

The next six seasons Agase played for the Browns and Baltimore Colts, and then the Evanston, Illinois native turned to the coaching field.

Ironically, Purdue was one of the first places he began his job hunting but suffered two near misses at becoming a Boilermaker assistant in the '50s.

Agase began his collegiate coaching career at Iowa State University as line coach of the Big Eight Conference school.

In 1956 Alex left Iowa State to join Ara Parseghian's Northwestern coaching staff, starting a 17-year tour of duty with the Wildcats. He was appointed Northwestern's 21st head football coach in 1964 when Parseghian became head coach at Notre Dame.

The only player in college history to be named to the all-time teams of two schools, Agase's playing exploits earned him a spot on the Diamond Anniversary All-Big Ten team. In 1963, he was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame.

He has long been a prominent sports personality in the Midwest. In 1970, he was one of ten finalists for the "Outstanding Chicagoan" award given annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and he was also the 1970 recipient of Chicago's Medal of Merit.

In December 1974 he was named to the Chicago Catholic League Hall of Fame and thus became only the second head coach to be so honored who had never coached or played in the league. The other was a gent who also coached in Indiana—Frank Leahy of Notre Dame.

Muscles alone aren't enough.

Even the toughest pro needs protection. Shoulder pads, hip pads, helmet—with these, a player can give the game all he's got, without fear of injury.

Life is much the same. Good health is important, but to get the most out of life, you need protection, too. That's where life insurance comes in. It can give you the security of knowing that your family will be protected, if you die. And, it can provide a reserve of funds for emergencies, education, retirement. Football Humor Might Be a Myth

by GUS SCHRADER, Sports Editor, Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Gazette
President, Football Writers Association of America

There's a sardonic adage among backwoods guides about the predictability of the novices they take duck-hunting or fishing: "Most of the early rising is done the night before."

Let's see, we ought to be able to adapt that to form a saying about football. Maybe something like "Most of the side-splitting halftime humor in the locker room is invented after the season is over." And probably—as Bob Zuppke used to say—by some poet in the pressbox.

Most sports writers will take their humor where they can find it, but not much of it comes from the locker room at halftime. Why not? Well, modern coaches find football a grim business. They tolerate precious little foolishness that near the task of winning football games.

Off the Deep End

Oh, there are some of the "trite-told tales" that postseason banquet speakers have used for years. You know the kind: The coach's halftime oration got his team so fired up that when he finished by saying, "I want you to go out that door and tear your opponents in half for Dear Old Siwash," the players charged through the door—and into the swimming pool. Yup, wrong door.

You can see why the pressbox poets have to improve and improvise. For instance, do you think this one really happened?

A coach was desperate for an idea as he followed his team into the locker room at halftime. They were trailing badly. As he groped for a motivation angle, his eyes saw the word "PUSH" on the locker room door as he entered.

That was it! He stalked into the room where his team was assembled. "Men, to succeed in life you need the same thing we are going to need in this second half," he intoned, "and it's expressed in a four-letter word printed on that door."

The players' gaze followed his dramatic finger, and they saw "PULL" printed on the inside of the door.

When Lee Corso was named football coach at Indiana, he told the news media they were welcome to come to his locker room at halftime to see and hear what transpired. Knowing what a fun-loving free spirit Corso is, a large number of writers and broadcasters took him up on this offer the first season. Alas, very few humorous stories came out of it, as even a merry man like Corso is dead-serious about football at halftime.

Most coaches are honest. They would dearly love to enhance their image by telling writers how brilliantly they used psychology to change the game's direction.

But here now is how Joe Paterno, coach of Penn State's fabulously successful Nittany Lions, related the true story of what happened in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1, 1968. Kansas was leading 14-7 with 1:30 to go when Penn State got the ball on the Kansas 49½-yard line.

"We had two timeouts left," Joe told the Football Writers Association of America. "The clock was stopped for a TV timeout when we took over. I called our wide receiver, Bobby Campbell, and our quarterback, Chuck Burkhardt, over to the sideline and told them our strategy.

"I told these two players that on the first play I wanted Campbell to run a deep pattern and Burkhardt to throw as long a pass as he could—over the end zone if possible. I told them we wanted Kansas to think these foolish Penn State people had panicked and were going for the bomb.

"Then, on second down, I wanted Burkhardt to dump off a little pass to our great tight end, Ted Kawalik, who would catch them with their defense deep; and Ted could run the ball down in there close for us. We would use one of our last two timeouts and set up a touchdown play.

"These two great kids immediately began talking," Joe resumed. "Campbell told Burkhardt to get the ball to him down by the goal line and he'd catch it. I told them both to cut it out. We didn't want any heroes on that first play, just a long, long pass to fool Kansas.

"Well, the timeout was over and they started back onto the field still talking. You've all seen the coach following his players onto the field, giving them last-second instructions. I was following those two guys and yelling at them not to fool around and risk an interception.

"The ball was snapped and Burkhardt faded to pass. Kansas put a heavy rush on him, and he barely got the ball away. It was over-thrown, however, as we wanted.

"Campbell really had no chance to catch it, but he was so determined that he dove horizontally and somehow caught the ball just before it hit the ground on the Kansas three-yard line.

Dirty Dozen

"We had a first down, and because Kansas had 12 men on the field, it took us four plays to score. That made it 14-13, and we went for two points. On the first try, Kansas was penalized for having the extra man on the field, and we made it on the next one to win 15-14.

"It was a tremendous victory, but the thing I'll always remember was the great dedication those two players had on the play that was supposed to be just a sham.

"I went to the dressing room, and the newspaper writers came in. They wanted to know how I called that great play on first down to set up the touchdown.

"I looked around at the squad and then turned back to the press. "Well," I said, "I noticed that the Kansas safety man was playing a little tight and . . ."

THE DEVELOPMENT FUND

The expanded physical education building, now under construction at 17th Ave. and Tuttle Park Place, has been named for Richard C. Larkins, director of athletics from 1946 to 1970. Located in Larkins Hall will be the Michael Peppe Aquatic Center, named for the University's first swimming coach, and the Paul G. Benedum Recreation Center, named for an Ohio State alumnus and benefactor. It was a $1 million pledge from the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation in Paul G. Benedum's name that started off the $5 million fund drive to match the General Assembly's appropriation for the expansion. New facilities will include a 50-meter Olympic standard pool, a diving bay and a handball court. The building is to be completed next summer.

Developing funds, developing friends

The Ohio State University Development Fund's staff does more than raise funds.

"We try to be 'friend raisers' as well as fund raisers," says Development Director Saul Seigel. "It's personalness and thoughtfulness that count most today."

As the University's official agency for seeking and receiving gifts, the Fund has raised nearly $78 million from 872,000 contributors since its founding in 1939.

Private gifts are needed more than ever before because Ohio State is only tax-assisted, not totally tax-supported, Seigel stresses. Government appropriations covered approximately 45 per cent of the University's $355 million budget in fiscal 1976.

For example, in 1973 the Ohio General Assembly appropriated half of the $10 million needed to expand Ohio State's student recreation and physical education facilities.

John F. Havens (seated), chairman of the Development Fund's Board of Directors, looks over a fund growth chart with Development Director Saul Seigel. Havens played a major role in the successful drive for expanding Ohio State's student recreation and physical education facilities.

Under the volunteer leadership of Columbus financier John F. Havens and golf great Jack Nicklaus, the Development Fund launched a successful national campaign to raise the remaining $5 million from private sources.

Today, three "neighborhood" recreation centers are complete and construction is proceeding on a main building.

Contributions to the Development Fund exceeded $8.2 million for 1975, a 43 per cent increase over the previous year. Ninety-five per cent of the gifts go to specified projects, such as faculty support, student financial aid, equipment and capital improvements, academic chairs and professorships, and research.

University President Harold L. Enarson, whom Seigel calls "the University's top fund raiser," has cited three major targets of opportunity for private fund raising:

- Expanding education opportunities for students, particularly National Merit and National Achievement Scholarship winners and minorities in the professions.
- Strengthening the faculty through more endowed chairs and professorships.
- Substantially increasing the University's capacity to meet special or emergency needs, through unrestricted funds.

In order to meet these needs for unrestricted monies, the Development Fund has established the President's Fund. This money will be used at the president's direction to alleviate the University's most critical needs during the 1970's and 1980's.

Seigel, who became Ohio State's first development director in August 1975, says his goal is "to develop a renaissance of confidence, pride, spirit and optimism about the future of our University."

He noted that the support of the University's administration, beginning with President Enarson, and the contributions of the Fund's volunteer board of directors were instrumental in the success of the Development Fund in increasing both the number of contributors and amounts given this year.

Contributions and questions regarding the Development Fund should be referred to Saul Seigel, Director of Development, (614) 422-2141.

Ohio State Fight Songs

ACROSS THE FIELD

Fight that team across the field,
 Show them Ohio's here,
 Set the earth reverberating with a mighty cheer
 Rah! Rah! Rah!
 Hit them hard and see how they fall;
 Never let that team get the ball,
 Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
 So let's win that old conference now.

CARMEN OHIO

Oh! Come let's sing Ohio's praise,
 And songs to Alma Mater raise;
 While our hearts rebounding thrill,
 With joy which death alone can still.
 Summer's heat or Winter's cold,
 The seasons pass, the years will roll;
 Time and change will surely show
 How firm thy friendship O-hi-o.

BUCKEYE BATTLE CRY

In old Ohio there's a team,
 That's known thru-out the land;
 Eleven warriors, brave and bold,
 Whose fame will ever stand,
 And when the ball goes over,
 Our cheers will reach the sky,
 Ohio Field will hear again
 The Buckeye Battle Cry —.

Drive! Drive on down the field,
 Men of the scarlet and gray;
 Don't let them thru that line,
 We have to win this game today,
 Come on, Ohio!
 Smash thru to victory
 We cheer you as we go:
 Our honor defend
 So we'll fight to the end for O Hi o.

Insta-Focus® — the only binoculars that keep fast moving action in focus.

Try using ordinary binoculars to follow the Quarterback fading back for a pass and then switching to a wide receiver sprinting into the end zone. Can't be done. Because no matter how good your binoculars are, you miss a lot of the action if you can't change focus fast enough.

Bushnell's unique Insta-Focus ends this problem forever. With Insta-Focus you can change focus as often as you want — instantly. Bushnell binoculars with Insta-Focus are the only binoculars made specifically for the fan of fast moving sports action. Racing, hunting, bird watching, anything. See them for yourself in better camera and sporting goods stores everywhere.
